Artist-adventurer Obi Kaufmann has spent his life exploring California. Through his unique blend of science and art, he has brought to life the beauty of California's biodiversity, geography, and history and connected them together through his best-selling book, The California Field Atlas and his most recent publication The State of Water.

Kaufmann is passionate about conservation and believes we can create a culture that embraces ecological restoration and resource replenishment. Kaufmann will join Secretary Crowfoot for a conversation discussing his vision for building a climate resilient society and how we can usher in a new age of preservation, benefiting California for generations to come.
